Whitman's Environmental, Health & Safety (EH&S) Division has over 50 years of combined experience in assisting industrial and pharmaceutical manufacturing companies comply with environmental, health and safety regulations. Managing EH&S requirements can be overwhelming, for large and small companies alike. Whitman can provide expert insights into how to effectively comply with the regulations that apply to your facility with practical compliance strategies. Our staff includes active members in many industrial trade organizations, allowing us to monitor and evaluate regulatory changes that apply to industrial operations. Whitman believes that EH&S compliance begins with a robust management program that not only satisfies all requirements, but one that is easily adaptable to site operations and changing regulations.
